

SUBCONTRACTOR LIABILITY

Subcontracting can introduce significant liability exposure to your business. If a subcontractor performs work improperly and a loss occurs, you and your insurer may have to pay for the loss. For this reason, you should always request a certificate of insurance from every subcontractor you hire.

Certificate of Insurance

Many different types of businesses use a certificate of insurance to confirm coverage. It contains the insurance details of the policyholder. Request a certificate of insurance from each subcontractor, detailing their liability insurance coverage. Ensure you receive necessary documentation prior to each project or on an annual basis for subcontractors who regularly work for you.

Insured or not, a subcontractor can cost you your business, reputation or both.

Why?

- If the subcontractor has no insurance you may be liable.
- If the subcontractor has insufficient insurance you may be liable.
- If your insurance company has to pay because of a subcontractor:
 - Your loss history is impacted.
 - Your premiums may increase.
 - Your deductibles may increase.
 - Your ability to get insurance may be affected.

Don't let the subcontractor pass off the cost of improper work on to you by ensuring the subcontractor has proper insurance.

See the following page for a checklist that may help you keep track of your subcontractors and their documentation.
